DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on December 5, 2005 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claim 15 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Orihira et al (U.S.Pat. 5,685,363) in view of Costello et al (U.S.Pat. 6,605,955).

With respect to claim 15, Orihira discloses (figure 1) a chuck for use in a lithographic device comprising substantially all of the limitations of the instant claim including: a first side having a support surface (22) constructed to support an object (2) and a second side (for example, the bottom side of base 4); an enclosed chamber (16) positioned within the chuck and a phase transiting material (18) positioned within the enclosed chamber. Orihira does not expressly disclose the second side having a low emissivity coating for thermally isolating the chuck. Costello et al disclose a chuck (14) having a first side (18) to support an object (wafer) and a second side (70) having a low emissivity coating (38) for at least thermally isolating the chuck. In view of such teachings, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine the teachings of Orihira and Costello et al to obtain the invention as specified in claim 15 of the present invention. It would have been obvious to a skilled artisan apply a low emissivity coating, as suggested by Costello et al, onto the second side of the Orihira's chuck. The purpose of doing so would have been to prevent the heat from the chuck being transmitted to another components of the lithographic device and whereby thermal expansion of these component can be greatly minimized.

Response to Amendment/Argument

4. Applicant's amendments filed December 5, 2005 have been entered. Claims 1, 12, and 14 have been amended. Claim 16 has been cancelled. With respect to claim 15, applicant's argument has been carefully reviewed but has been traversed in view of new ground of rejection as set forth above.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Amended claims 1-14 have been found to be allowable since the prior art of record, either alone or in combination, neither discloses nor makes obvious the combination of a lithographic apparatus and corresponding method, comprising among other features, a chuck being thermally isolated from its frame and wherein the frame is provided with at least one mirror on a side and an interferometer position determination system for accurately positioning the patterning device or the substrate with the aid of that mirror, as recited in the instant claims.
